

The recent history of the Cancer Research Society's funding of research

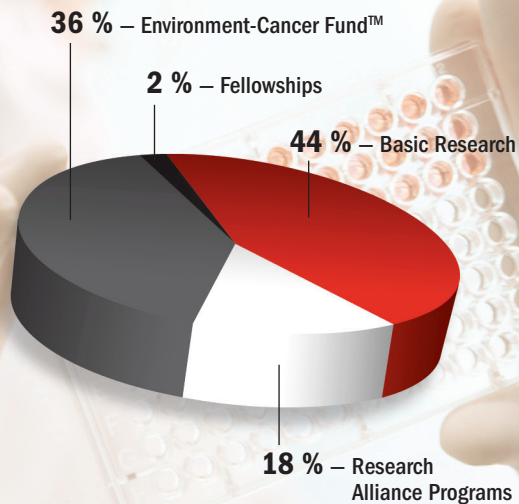

Since 1994, the Cancer Research Society has allocated over 90 million dollars to more than 800 cancer research projects across Canada. Of that amount, close to 35 million dollars were distributed over the past 5 years.

Where do your donations go?

In 2011-2012, thanks to the generous donors who support its mission, the Cancer Research Society awarded more than 10 million dollars in grants to scientists across Canada.

The research projects selected were those most likely to help advance cancer research for all types of cancer. These projects will help in understanding the processes leading to cancer, as well as the means of preventing, controlling, and curing its over 200 different forms.

The funds invested will be allocated to the following areas of activity:

Why choose the Cancer Research Society

For its commitment and passion

For 65 years, the Cancer Research Society has worked tirelessly for a single purpose: to help researchers find solutions to beat cancer.

The Cancer Research Society works earnestly, with conviction and passion, to foster new discoveries that can make a difference.

For its expertise, its excellence and its ingenuity

The Cancer Research Society possesses scientific expertise in administering the grant applications it funds – a point of reference for others.

The Cancer Research Society finances research on all types of cancer and supports the best researchers in hospitals and universities throughout the country.

With its Environment-Cancer Fund™, the Cancer Research Society is a forerunner in its initiatives to fund research to identify the causes of cancer in our living, occupational and leisure environments.

For its cause, one that affects the majority of the population

Cancer is the disease Canadians fear most. According to recent Statistics Canada normalized data, cancer is the leading cause of mortality in the country.

1 in 2 Canadians will develop cancer in their lifetime.
1 in 4 will die as a result of cancer.

Finding the causes of cancer is the main reason to give.

Help our researchers find a cure

For 65 years, the Cancer Research Society has worked tirelessly toward one goal and one hope: defeating cancer.

Our mission: To fund research on all types of cancer

Founded in 1945, the Cancer Research Society is a national not-for-profit organization whose sole mission is to fund cancer research exclusively and to offer seed money for the most promising original ideas, projects and researchers across Canada.

How can you participate in the fight against cancer?

The Cancer Research Society carries out its mission largely thanks to the support and help of its loyal donors and volunteers.

Would you also like to make a difference?

Here are some ways how you can help:

Make a donation!

By making a one-time donation or a donation in memory or in honour of a loved one, or by planning a gift such as a testamentary trust, you can participate financially in the fight against cancer.

Organize an event for the Cancer Research Society!

Fundraising events, at any scale, are an excellent way to support cancer research. Go ahead! Gather your family members, colleagues and friends to join in the fight against cancer. Getting involved in an event that benefits the Cancer Research Society allows you to connect with people and build unforgettable relationships.

Become a volunteer!

Whether it be to help in our administrative tasks or to contribute to the success of one of our events, you can donate your time and experience by choosing tasks according to your preferences and capabilities.
